These are Hiraya's identity. Every item is a reason to choose Hiraya over any competitor. Filipino-Japanese fusion, bold flavours, creative combinations — this section does the brand's heavy lifting. It stays exactly as is.

WHY NO CHANGE

Well-structured, distinct from the roll menu, and carries the clearest Filipino influence — mango, poke sauce, flambéed fish. The bento boxes add a lunch-format option that differentiates from competitors. Six items is the right size for this category.

WHY REMOVED FROM WEBSITE

Hosomaki and nigiri are commodities — available at every sushi restaurant in Switzerland, including supermarkets. Listing 25 variants tells customers nothing distinctive about Hiraya. These items belong on the ordering platform (Just Eat) where customers are already in browse-and-build mode. The website is a brand showcase: it should lead with what makes Hiraya worth choosing, not compete on breadth with every delivery sushi joint in the region.

LOGIC OF FIVE

Entry (Mix 2) · Premium (Shohuko) · Vegetarian · Vegan sharing · Party

MIX SUSHI 1 – DROPPED

Redundant with Mix Sushi 2. Near-identical format at a lower price point creates confusion and devalues Mix 2. Customers who want fewer pieces can order from Just Eat.

MIX SUSHI NR. 3 – DROPPED

Overlaps with the Shohuko Teller in size and price. The Shohuko is more distinctive (rainbow rolls + nigiri) and photographs better. Keep the better story.

HANA MIX – DROPPED

"No raw fish" is too niche a hook for a website showcase. The audience is small and the item has no photo. Better suited to Just Eat where that dietary filter is explicit.

NIGIRI SUPREME – DROPPED

8 pieces of nigiri at CHF 24 is a weak proposition as a set. Customers wanting nigiri will build their own order on Just Eat. This does not belong in a curated set menu.

NOTE ON FISCH SASHIMI

Currently has no photo. Worth commissioning one before launch — it's the highest-value item in this section and deserves a visual.

WAKAME SALAT — DROPPED

CHF 5 price point is the lowest on the menu. Low margin, low excitement, no story. Customers who want it know to order it on Just Eat.

TEMARI — DROPPED

Low awareness in the Swiss market. Visually similar to nigiri. No differentiation story. Has a photo but doesn't add enough to justify the space.

FISCH TATAR — DROPPED

Near-identical positioning to Fisch Tataki. No photo. Two raw fish preparations side by side without visual context creates confusion rather than choice.

LACHS IKURA — DROPPED

No photo. Overlaps with Gunkan (caviar element). Without a visual, premium items look like afterthoughts. Remove until a photo is available.

THE STRATEGIC PRINCIPLE

The website is a brand showcase, not an order interface. Every item on it should answer the question: "Why Hiraya?" Hosomaki and nigiri don't answer that question — they're available at Migros. The Fusion Rolls, the Poke Bowls with mango and poke sauce, the Sets for a full experience — those answer it. A focused menu of 29 items projects more confidence than a catalogue of 62.

ONE ACTION ITEM BEFORE LAUNCH

Commission a photo for Fisch Sashimi. It's the highest price point in Starters & Specials (from CHF 15) and the only item in the renovated menu without a photo. A strong image here reinforces the premium positioning of the Specials section.
